Sport Snap Shots

Down New York way the fight fans are beginning to complain that that Lewinsky's style of boxing and his habit of fighting frequently has tempted other scrappers to try the same stunt as now there are many of the Lewinsky school. And the reason why the fans object is because fighters of this class find that

In order to keep up the pace of so many bouts they are obliged to work easy and stall a great deal in each encounter. When Lewinsky first started out to fight every evening of the week the fans threw their caps aloft, cheering him for his gameness. But walked right into a very nice little rep as a result and also made quite a nice move of changing. However the time arrives when the fight loving public are beginning to feel that they have done a little bit, especially since they are being swamped on every side by other fighters with the same idea. All of them are finding that in order to make the grade they must fuss and stall throughout the biggest part of each fight and two such fighters in the ring together offer nothing very thrilling. Thus it is that the fans are fretting and they will probably bring a halt to the thing before many more moons.

Clark Griffith has his pitchers practicing their deliveries before a mirror. Some very neat movements we will see next season, and withal the boys should present very pretty figures.

Muggsy McGraw and Coniskey were a little worried on the first month or two of their trip. There was some question in their minds as to whether the thing would pay expenses. However, they weren't first about it long. They brought back $75,000 with them, which came goes to Muggsy and Coniskey, who put up most of the change in the first place, and then the players come in on a dividend basis. The teams played to an average attendance of 310,000 and very few of their games were called by rain. Muggsy declares that a trip next fall will be considered down to South America and those parts.

TWO CHURCH GAMES BILLED FOR FRIDAY

Methodists and Presbyterians Clash in Opener—Baptists and Catholics in Closing Tilt.

Two close basketball conflicts are billed for this week in the new church league, which was organized the early part of the year, for the purpose of preparing material for future high school teams. The idea was also to make the organization a permanent thing, in this city.

At present, three teams are tied for first place. They are the Congregational, Methodist and Presbyterian squads. Friday night of this week, the Methodists play the Presbyterians in the opening conflict. The loser will undoubtedly be put out of the race for title honors. If the Methodists win, and they are the favorites at the present time, the fight for the cup will be between that team and the Congregationalists. Both these games are billed for the last game of the season, and it is going to be some battle when staged.

The second game of the evening will be played between the Catholics and Baptists teams. The Catholics are favorites, and one victory would place them in possibly third place at the present time. The Baptists have lost all of their games also. The two teams who do not play this week are the Trinity and Congregationalists.

The games mentioned for this week may possibly be postponed. But one condition will lead to such an arrangement, that being the case of the Janesville-Wauwatosa elimination contest, which every student will undoubtedly attend. If this game is played on Friday night, it may be possible to play the games on Saturday night.

CHAMPIONS PLAY AT WHITEWATER FRIDAY AGAINST WAUWATOSA

Elimination Contest for Entrance to State Meet, is Finally Arranged—Youngman May Referee.

The Janesville high school basketball champions, are scheduled to meet the Wauwatosa high school quintet Friday night at seven o'clock in the armory gymnasium at White-water. There is a possibility that Frank Youngman, one-time star player for the Wisconsin university five, will referee the contest, which is the only obstacle between the Janesville team and the state tournament at Appleton, to be held on Friday and Saturday of next week.

Wauwatosa made no protest on the White-water floor, and both schools agree that this floor will be fair enough to both teams. It is certain that Youngman, if secured, will officiate a strict and fair game. Janesville sees nothing but glory ahead. They expect an easy win from Wauwatosa, although they will take no chances. Capt. Henning, is ready for the state meet, and but for a few slight bruises, the remainder of the squad are in the pink of condition.

Rau is back in the lineup. He will be used as first string substitute, with Barnes as second choice. Rau's condition is greatly improved, and his bad foot is in good shape again. He was back to Janesville at the best of care, for he realized that he might be needed in the tourney games. His loss at the Beloit tourney was evident throughout, although, as it was a strain on the regulars.

Racine-Burlington. Racine and Burlington high schools meet Friday night at the Milwaukee Y. A. delegations from both Racine and Burlington have chartered special cars. Racine are looking for a hard match, and may be forced to use their regulars throughout the contest. This game and the Janesville-Wauwatosa contest will bring to light two more teams to be represented in the state tourney. Then but one five must be picked from the southwest section.

Janeyville plan to send a large crowd of rooters to White-water on Friday night, if conditions favor them in doing so. A train can bring the team back to Janesville at nine o'clock or around that time, leaving White-water about eight-thirty. The game will be called promptly at seven.

EIGHT TEAMS BEGAN MILTON MEET TODAY

Edgerton, Stoughton, Monroe, Jefferson, Kenosha, West Allis, Palmyra and Milton high school basketball teams are in Milton where they opened the second annual interscholastic high school basketball tournament held under the auspices of the Milton College Athletic association, today.

All of the contests will be staged on the floor at the college gymnasium, which playing space is one of the best in southern Wisconsin. Referee Donnelly, coach at St. John's Military academy, and former varsity star at Wisconsin, has been secured to officiate at all contests. During the tourney the visiting teams will be guests of the college, and every effort has been made to satisfy the various squads during their stay at Milton.

Music will be an additional feature during the games. The inspiration to be furnished by the Firemen's band and the college orchestra. At the conclusion of the tourney games, which end Thursday night, a banquet will be given by the college officials to all visiting teams.

A handsome silver trophy cup will be awarded the team winning first place, which cup is to be kept permanently by the first place team. Also, each member of the teams winning first, second and third place, will receive a silver loving cup, five inches high.

The tourney last season was a successful event, and efforts to surpass it this season has been the desire of the association managers. Edgerton and Kenosha are bidding strong for honors.

Crooks' Special Slang Code Has Many Queer Expressions; Adopt Some for Common Usage

While slang has become popular in the modern code of expression largely used by American people because of its expressiveness, few people are able to understand the language that is universally used by the "knights of the road" and criminals. In fact, when criminals appear before courts an interpreter is often needed to translate the "lingo" that the prisoner gives in explaining his crime or defense.

The use of these words by the clan is attributed to the prisons where convicts are not allowed to converse. They sneak conversation past the guards and because of the evasions practiced have to use short sentences and veiled words. The slang or rather the language of the dyed-in-the-wool thief changes yearly, and while some of the expressions have crept into the vernacular, such as the designation "two bits" for twenty-five cents, "jitney" for a nickel, "buck" for a dollar, and "century" for one hundred dollars, and "snail" for five dollars. In fact, members of the underworld have a glossary of the terms used in the underworld with which they hope to be able to comprehend testimony from the "gunmen," "sleigh-riders," "cokers" and other classes of inhabitants of the criminal world.

To a criminal, a place which he considers robbing is a "crib," and if he plans to blow the safe with nitroglycerin he will "soup it" or "crack the joint." He will "knuckle" without the combination by the sense of touch or listening to the tumblers fall. If he is caught by a "bull," a policeman, "fly-cop," a plain clothes man, with the swag or "push" his loot over a robbery, he will probably be sent "over" or up the "river" to "serve a bit" or a term in the "stir," the prison. If he is an ex-convict, he has won a "turn" and the term "railroad" to the pen, means that the police gave him no chance but "framed up" evidence to "put him over." A "strong arm man" or "stick up" is a highway robbery, and often safe-brokers are jailed, "beatmen" and second-story men and sneak thieves are "night prowls and day prowls."

Pickpockets are known as "dips" and when they turn a trick they have "loomed a leecher," which applies to when a purse-snatcher succeeds in his craft. The use of "stool pigeons" means a cheap crook, whom the detectives of big cities "distill" to the underworld to give information on crooks. In the prisons convicts are hired to be "stool pigeons" to find out plots to escape and to "sneak" on other prisoners. A weapon or pistol is a "rod" or "smoke wagon" and "knuckles" or "peach-bags" means weapons such as brass knuckles, billy clubs or sand bags with which to slug a victim.

Among the tramp tribe and hoboes terms are "stiff," which means "dead." To them food is "scroffles." A "poke out" is what is given begging at back doors, where he "skins his knuckles" rapping, or to "slam a gate," throw your feet, which means "sell a hard neck" or "sly" to "bunk a mark for a jitney" to buy a shupper, meaning false begging to get money to buy liquor. To vagrants all railroad employees are "rails." A brakeman is a "shack," a porter a "gate" and a watchman, and to be put off a train is to be "ditched" and given a "tie pass." To go to the police station or lodging house to get a "kip" or "doss," meaning sleep, is to "bunk." Tramps who carry blankets and supplies are "bindiestiff" and an overcoat is a "bluie." When a "tramp royal" or "comet" one who shuns freights but rides blind baggage, searched to him it is being "frisked." A tramp who carries a blanket or supplies and does not steal his living is a "bindiestiff" and his satchel a "keester."

Amusements

THE APOLLO THEATRE.

Mothers, fathers, the clergy, young men and women should see the exposé of the "white slave" traffic which is now being shown in motion pictures at the Apollo theatre. On the first night the house was crowded and that condition has existed at every performance since. The last of the series will be shown tonight. There is nothing about the pictures to offend, but they are stirring and vivid, portraying the evils of the "white slave" traffic in an effective manner. The conscience of the American public is being touched to the quick by this exhibition and a moral awakening result that would drive out this cancer that is eating into the vitals of American society. In addition to the pictures the young "white hopes," the Ross brothers, continue to delight and entertain the audience with their clever exhibition of boxing.

Only Empty Things Float.

"I kept my head when I fell into the water," observed the young man. "How fortunate," replied the caustic maid; "it must have helped you so nicely to float."

Energy in Pound of Coal.

One pound of coal releases sufficient energy to raise an average man to a point fourteen miles high.

To be "blowed in a glass stiff" means to be a crook or hobo who can be depended upon to "crack a joint" or to watch for the bulls.

Yeggmen formerly meant a safe-blower, but it has become to be used to term gangs of thieves who travel the country and after "getting the lay of the land" with the aid of an advance agent, who learns secrets for robbing the "crib," "pull the job" and then take to the road again. These thieves are declared the most dangerous and are most feared by the police. A "musher" is a tramp who begs or sells articles, and a tenderfoot at hobnobbing is a "gay cat" and the patrol wagon is a "paddy wagon."

These expressions cover only a small part of the slang or language used by the tramps and thieves and ex-convicts, experienced tramps and crooks, all of whom know their usage and carry on a conversation that others are not able to understand. Each class of criminals have their expressions and a person who is a slave to drugs is a "coker" or "sleigh-rider." Snow is the drug used. Contrary to general belief, "gunmen" does not always mean highway robbers who are hired to commit crimes, but to the criminals and detectives they are a squad of petty crooks, usually well armed, who are drug-fanciers, "single-bells" who, under the influence of a drug, do not hesitate to kill. Degenerates, who seek a lower level in the underworld are "slavers" or "cadets."

Criminals are not known by their real names, but rather by their nicknames or "monickers," such as "Wisconsin Tommy," "Indiana Mike," "Lefty Louis." (When descriptions of suspects are circulated around the country they always contain the criminal name of the wanted. The thief has deadly fear of the fingerprint system and Bertillon measurements and the mugshot or photographer by which they are trailed.)

Fruit in the Diet. Though fresh fruits are not nutritious in most cases, yet they are valuable additions to the menu. Besides supplying the minerals and water which purify the blood, they add variety to our fare and make our meals appetizing, thus adding considerably in digestion. The banana is an exception in the matter of nutrition, furnishing as it does considerable food value.

HERE'S A BROMIDE.

"Brethren there a man with soul so dead
That never to himself has said:
This is my own, my native land?"

Here is a bromide that should rejuvenate the soul of the dearest of the jingo writers of the country. The men who decry that the United States must go to war with Mexico and start immediately. Read what Governor O. B. Colquhoun of Texas says on the Mexican situation. He must be one of those old gray wolves, a roaring, ramping fire-eating son of a gun sort of a chap, to read his dispatch sent broadcast recently. It is refreshing once in a while to read such a speech, to listen to such a denunciation even though the average man must smile. Colquhoun says:

"I defy any authority on the face of the earth, Washington included, to prevent me from protecting our citizens along the border. It is only the inherent right of self-defense, whenever the situation demands I will deal directly with Mexico in righting wrongs and not wait for the federal government, which seems to stand in fear."

"You can't expect the United States soldiers to cross the border for thieves and murderers. Oh, no. But the Texas rangers can do it. The federal government has not once assisted any citizen along the Rio Grande when they appealed for aid, except when it was too late."

"The defense of the people on the border belongs to Texas, and they shall have its full protection while I am governor. I am trying to restrain myself, but it is almost impossible in view of the outrages and indifference of the United States. These bandits cross our border, kidnap our people, steal our property, then go back into Mexico and are safe. They know they are safe. They know Washington will do nothing."

"The governor of Texas is superior to the president of the United States on matters entrusted to his care. Suppose Bryan had been kidnapped and butchered himself, would it have amounted to any more than in the Vergara case? Citizens are entitled to equal rights. The democratic party is drunk with power. Congressmen and senators have become cowards for political pelf and patronage."

IS TOO SERIOUS.

There is every indication that Dr. Wiley, the former authority on pure food matters in the United States, is taking himself as seriously as is the Wisconsin pure food commissioner, Mr. Emery. Dr. Wiley attempts to blame both President Taft and President Wilson for conditions that exist in his mind, without the least convincing argument. Leslie's Weekly says:

"Too bad! Isn't Dr. Wiley undertaking a pretty big contract when he calls down three presidents of the United States because they have not agreed with him upon pure food matters? He charges that President Roosevelt listened to the siren of opportunism in appointing the Remsen Reference Board to review the activities of the Bureau of Chemistry when he was chief chemist, that President Taft had given to the worst class of adulterators this world has ever produced a complete support, and that President Wilson, 'has not risen to the occasion and freed the food law from bondage.' Talk like this doesn't convince any one that the two former presidents thus attacked betrayed the people or that President Wilson has sold out to food adulterators. It does, however, confirm the opinion, long held by some, that Wiley takes himself altogether too seriously and is more of an egotist than a reformer."

POSSIBLE BUT NOT PROBABLE.

There is a possibility, but not a probability, that the United States may have to declare war upon Mexico after all. The Chicago Tribune looks at the matter in a most pessimistic view. It sees years of conquest, the final conquering of the people of our sister republic and the division of the vast territory into states, as Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, and California were in the late Forties. The Madison Journal takes another view, a purely socialistic view, by the way, calls upon the shades of the departed leaders to prevent the shooting down in cold blood of the women and children of Mexico by a savage soldiery. Now there is a possibility that the United States may have to take some action but no probability. While Bryan is doing the juggling act on the Chautauqua circuit, appearing on the same program with jugglers, trained dogs and the rest of the vaudeville entertainment, one may not really fear war. He is too busy gathering in the money to stop to handle the diplomatic maneuvers of a real statesman and meanwhile Wilson is doing the faithful fido act, "watching and waiting." Meantime our soldiery are being massed on the frontier, the governor of Texas breathes defiance to the whole nation, to Mexico, in general, and to Washington authorities in particular, that he will defend his citizens. Postmasters are murdered and custom houses burned by Mexican bandits, Americans killed by well-called them bandits at best, and still Bryan gorges about the chautauqua circle and Wilson watches and waits for what?

Unwritten history of the Madison protest against high taxes gives an amusing account of the reception that was accorded to L. E. Gettle, late member of the assembly from Rock county, erstwhile candidate for the job of state senator, former member of the Rock county board of supervisors and secretary of the state railroad commission attorney for the tax commission, and awarded for meritorious services for the cause of reform, when he sought to question Attorney Charles Pierce of this city as to why he was seeking to aid in the reduction of the taxes. Mr. Gettle evidently discovered that while he might be in the right pew he was in the wrong church by the temper of the men who made up the convention.

The reform press of the city made a strong play on the fact that the Fond du Lac convention passed merely resolutions of investigation and no resolutions, condemning the high taxes. They failed to explain that the clever manipulation of conditions the convention called by men who sought to add themselves in reducing the taxes if possible, were outgeneraled by politicians. Never mind, there will be enough conventions this summer to keep the reform press busy explaining why and wherefore.

It is surprising that absolute ignorance is displayed by men who are supposed to handle some branches of civil government, on the real conditions that exist. Many are surprised when facts are presented and want proofs before proceeding. The blindest persons are those who do not want to see what there is to be seen.

That Panama canal problem is still one of the worries of President Wilson's official life. It does not worry Bryan at all. In fact, nothing worries him unless it be that state affairs may interfere sometime with some of his chautauqua engagements. Usually, they do not.

The candidates for the various offices at the coming spring election are now all in the open. The primaries for the city officials' nomination comes first and the voters should take care to make their selections wisely.

Women are to vote in the city elections in Illinois this spring and the outcome will be interesting to note. Especially in Rockford will their vote be important with the question of "wet" or "dry" up to be decided upon.

So Rock river's channel is not to be deepened after all? This is the opinion of the government engineers in the face of a report that shows that it could be accomplished easily.

Winter returns for one last effort to assert his authority and remind the average citizen that spring is not here until Saturday at the earliest.

Wisconsin is awakening to the fact that what happened to Iowa may happen to Wisconsin unless a halt is called in this excessive taxation.

On the Spur of the Moment

The Critic.
Dad reads about the wedding and he snorts like all git out. He reads the social doings with a snort. He reads the most derisive show. He says they make the papers for the wimmen folks alone. He'll read about the parties and he'll fume and fret and groan. He says of information it does not contain a crumb. But you ought to hear him holler when the paper doesn't come. He always first to grab it and he reads it plumb clean through. He doesn't miss an item or a want ad—that is true. He says "They don't know what we want, them darn newspaper guys. I'm going to take a day some time and go and put 'em wise. It sometimes seems as though they must be deaf and blind and dumb." But you ought to hear him holler when the paper doesn't come.

Signs of The Times.

One of the steel corporations magnates, while wintering at Palm Beach, killed a shark by jamming an oar down its throat. What chance has a shark with a steel magnate?

Dispatches say that Roosevelt is now entirely out of touch with civilization. It would be too dangerous to venture the suggestion that he always has been.

New Jersey clans are preparing to exterminate the mosquito. If New Jersey would exterminate the trusts that breed there, it would be more to the point.

Canada has deported one criminal and the United States refused to receive him. It looks as though the only place that man can go is up in a balloon.

Now they say that rocking the cradle is unhygienic. At any rate it is not so popular as it used to be.

A burglar captured two New York policemen. Let it be hoped that he treated them as kindly as possible. London hotel porter has retired with $75,000. Doubtless most of it is American money, too.

Some Dreams.

A friend of ours said the other day: "A friend who had heard that I sometimes suffered from insomnia told me of a sure cure. 'Eat a quart of peanuts and drink two or three glasses of milk before going to bed,' said he. 'and I'll warrant you'll be asleep in half an hour.' I did as he suggested, and my friend was right. I did go to sleep very soon after retiring. Then a friend with his head under his arm came along and asked me if I wanted to buy his feet. I was negotiating with him when the dragon on which I was riding slipped out of his skin, and left me floating in mid-air. While I was considering how to get down, a bull with two heads peered over the edge of the well and said he would haul me up if I would first climb up and rig a windlass for him. So, as I was sliding down the mountain side, the brakeman came in and asked him when the train would reach my station. 'I've passed your station miles back,' he said calmly, folding up the train and slipping it into his vest pocket. At this juncture the clown bounded into the ring and pulled the center pole out of the ground, lifting up the tent and all the people in it while I stood on the earth below watching myself go out of sight among the clouds above. Then I awoke and found that I had been asleep almost ten minutes."

STATE WILL NOT RECEIVE TWENTY-FIVE ELK FROM YELLOWSTONE RESERVE

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., March 13.—Because of the lateness of the season and lack of snow and consequent difficulty in capturing the animals in their native haunts, it is doubtful whether the state of Wisconsin will get its expected gift of twenty-five elk from Yellowstone park, as promised by the government. Word from Washington to this effect has come to State Game Warden John A. Shotts. Officials of the Milwaukee zoo have guaranteed $500 to pay for their transportation. It is proposed to place them in the recently authorized state game farm within the forest reserve in Vilas county.

The department is stocking the Lake Winagra and Mendota region with quail, partridge and other game birds. The department is not disposed to grant requests for game birds to private parties for preparation, in order that the state may avoid complications of various kinds.

All in the soft, harmonious colorings—the rich patterns that originate with this mill—which sets the styles for carpet and rug weavers generally. To the discerning mind there is but one course open in rug buying. That leads straight to the Whittall make. There is no higher appeal. Whittall Rugs are indisputably best. You will buy where the largest stocks of such rugs are shown, both for variety and because prices are most reasonable at the store that does the heaviest buying and most selling—The Big Store in this case.

WILL BUILD BASIN FOR STREET OUTLET

Council Held Weekly Meeting Yesterday Afternoon—Board of Public Works to File Report.

City Engineer C. V. Kerch was instructed to prepare and lay plans for a storm sewer from School street to Cherry to Rock River to afford an outlet for the water basin which in times of heavy rainfall has formed a street pool that afforded considerable trouble to the property owners at yesterday's meeting of the city council. The city will build a storm sewer from the river to Franklin street on Holmes street this spring to give an outlet to the water, which naturally runs to the river on this street, and with the improvement of gutters the water will be able to give enough outlet to the freshets and at River street; the water gathers and forms a pool in the street. As improvements are to be made on Franklin street, and with better gutters and gutters the trouble would be decreased, the city officials aim to eliminate the muddy streets with a sewer to the river, which will be constructed large enough to run the water off before the freshets.

The sewer will be continued to School street on Cherry street later, and the improvements will furnish an outlet for the street water from the surrounding district because of the lower level and will prove of great value to property owners and residents in the districts to be benefited by the project.

C. K. Millmore, superintendent of streets, was directed to build a brick cross walk on Chatham street on the south side of Holmes street. The council allowed labor bills for the street department, the amount being $608.52, for two weeks' time. The lighting bill for the month of February, amounting to $1,231.95, was allowed. The water bill for the month of $90.47 was by the council at the meeting. The bonds of W. J. Smith were approved.

A new amendment of section 1, chapter 4, on allowing animals on public highways was given its first and second reading yesterday afternoon and will be acted upon at the next meeting. The section will be amended by adding chickens to the list of animals and fowls prohibited to be allowed to run at large in the city and the ordinance provides that the owners of such animals or fowls found running at large or in public streets unless under the control of a person shall be liable to a fine from one to ten dollars.

As property owners on the streets which the council aims to improve by pavement, gutters and curbing made no protest on the assessments at the public hearing yesterday afternoon, the board will file their favorably reported today. Before final passage by the council notice is given of the final hearing before the city commissioners seven days before the meeting, before the council can act upon the report and order the improvements.

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS TAKE RADICAL MOVE

PRESENT RESOLUTION TO THE SCHOOL BOARD WITH GUARANTEE FOR GOOD CONDUCT.

BOARD WANTS REFORM

May Allow Basketball Team to Play at Appleton, But Will Adopt Important Athletic Rules Later.

Aroused as the result of charges that high school boys conducted themselves in an ungentlemanly manner at the time of the college basketball tournament, and determined to clear themselves of the reflections on their actions and deportment, a hundred and sixty boys met in mass meeting at the high school yesterday and adopted resolutions condemning individuals who brought disgrace upon the school and pledging themselves to prevent a repetition of such an affair.

Through Superintendent Buell they requested a hearing before the board of education which held a special session Tuesday afternoon at five o'clock and the same was given. Louis J. Hayes, chairman of the student committee, appeared before the commissioners, explained briefly the attitude which the students had taken, and read the following resolution which 109 of them had signed:

Actions Condemned.

"To the board of education, Gentlemen:

"Whereas, much unfavorable criticism has been done in this community and in other communities of our high school and basketball team because of the reprehensible actions of certain individuals, and

"Whereas, we believe an injustice has been done in thus condemning our high school and basketball team as a whole for the actions and ungentlemanly conduct of a few individuals, and whereas, it is our purpose in this document to state that the Janesville high school does not uphold such conduct on the part of any of its members,

"Therefore, be it resolved, that the undersigned members of the Janesville high school do hereby strongly denounce and condemn those individuals who have brought dishonor and disgrace upon our school.

"And we hereby resolve to do all in our power to bring about the cause of honorable and gentlemanly conduct on the part of ourselves and our schoolmates.

"The committee of the students in charge of the resolutions was composed of the following: Victor Hemmings, Gerald Cunningham, Sherman Stegelson, Malcolm Douglas, Louis J. Hayes, Carl Frick and Carl H. Schoch.

Buell Sees Hopeful Side.

Superintendent Buell declared that he felt that the action of the student body in the matter presented an entirely different aspect of the situation and that in his opinion affairs had taken a decidedly optimistic turn. The boys realized the gravity of the situation placed them and were eager to do everything they could to throw it off. He took it as a very hopeful sign.

The members of the team were given an opportunity to come before the board and tell what they knew of the Beloit charges. Several citizens who were present were also heard before the board took action authorizing Superintendent Buell to investigate further the charges in connection especially with particular cases and to report back to the board for final action. President Buckmaster of the board stated that he would call another special meeting within a day or so to receive the report so that final action might be taken at once.

In the course of yesterday's proceedings Mr. Buell made a strong plea in behalf of the athletic coaches, declaring that their benevolent side far outweighed any detrimental aspect which might be brought forward. The training of high school athletes, he said, was an encouragement to younger boys all over the city whether in high school or grades, to take an interest in sports and affairs and activity were inspired as a result.

Board Favors Change.

It was apparently the attitude of the board that some radical change in the conduct of athletics in the high school should be adopted with the idea of actually engaging a far larger number of the young men in the various sports, thus caring for their physical needs. While it is not likely that the team will be prohibited from attending the Appleton tournament, there is a possibility of the prohibition or a limitation, at least, on the number of games played by high school teams out of the city during the course of a season.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

The secret of keeping young—is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle.

Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive liver and bowels. Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action, yet always effective. They bring about that exuberance of spirit, that natural buoyancy which should be enjoyed by everyone, by tuning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities. You will know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets by their olive color. 10c and 25c per box. The Olive Tablet Company, Columbus, Ohio. All druggists.

Miss Wrاندall had herself announced by the obsequious doorman, and stood by in patience to wait for the absurd rule of the house to be carried out. "No one could get in without being announced from below," said the doorman.

"I can get in all right, all right," said the messenger boy, "I got a telegram for de lady."

"Go to the rear!" exclaimed the doorman, with some energy. While Miss Wrاندall waited in Sara's reception hall on the tenth floor, the messenger, having traversed a more devious route, arrived with his message.

Watson took the envelope and told him to wait. Five minutes passed. Miss Wrاندall grew very uncomfortable under the persistent though complimentary gaze of the street urchin. He stared at her, wide-eyed and admiring, his tribute to the glorious. She stared back occasionally, narrow-eyed and reproving, her tribute to the grotesque.

"Will you please step into the drawing-room, Miss Wrاندall," said Watson, returning. He led her across the small foyer and threw open a door. She passed into the room beyond.

Then he turned to the boy who stood beside the hall seat, making change for a quarter as he approached. "Here," he said, handing him the receipt book and a dime, "that's for you." He dropped the quarter into his own pocket, where it mingled with coins that were strangers to it up to that instant, and imperiously closed the door behind the boy who failed to say "thank you." Every man to his trade!

There was a woman in the drawing-room when Vivian entered, standing well over against the windows with her back to the light. The visitor stopped short in surprise. She had expected to find her sister-in-law in bed, attended by a politely superior person in pure white.

"Why, Sara," she began, "I am so glad to see you are up and—"

"The other woman came forward. "But I am not Sara, Miss Wrاندall," she said, in a well-remembered voice. "How do you do?"

Vivian found herself looking into the face of Hetty Castleton. Instantly she extended her hand.

"This is a surprise!" she exclaimed. "When did you return? Leslie told me your plans were quite settled when he saw you in Lucerne. Oh, I see! Of course! How stupid of me. Sara sent for you."

"She has been quite ill," said Hetty, non-committally. "We got in yesterday. I thought my place was here, naturally."

"Naturally," repeated Vivian, in a detached sort of way. "How is she today? May I see her?"

"She is very much better. In fact, she is sitting up in her room." A warm flush suffused her face, a shy smile appeared in her eyes. "She is receiving two gentlemen visitors, to be perfectly honest, Miss Wrاندall, her lawyer, Mr. Carroll, and—Mr. Booth."

They were seated side by side on the uncomfortable Louis Seize divan in the middle of the room.

"Perhaps she won't care to see me, after an audience so fatiguing," said Miss Wrاندall sweetly. "And so exasperating," she added, with a smile. Hetty looked her perplexity.

"But she will see you, Miss Wrاندall—if you don't mind waiting. It is a business conference they're having."

An ironic gleam appeared in the corner of Vivian's eye. "Oh," she said, and waited. Hetty smiled uncertainly. All at once the tall American girl was impressed by the wistful, almost humble look in the Englishwoman's eyes, an appealing look that caused her to wonder not a little. Like a flash she jumped at an obvious conclusion.

and almost caught her breath. This girl loved Booth and was losing him! Vivian exulted for a moment and then, with an impulse she could not quite catalogue, laid her hand on the other's slim fingers, and murmured somewhat hazily: "Never mind, never mind!"

"Oh, you must wait," cried Hetty, not at all in touch with the other's mood. "Sara expects to see you. The men will be out in a few minutes."

"I think I will run in tomorrow morning," said Vivian hastily. She arose almost immediately and again extended her hand. "So glad to see you back again, Miss Castleton. Come and see me. Give my love to Sara."

She took her departure in some haste, and in her heart she was rejoicing that she had not succeeded in making a fool of herself by confessing to Sara that she had said unkind things about her to Brandon Booth.

Hetty resumed her seat in the broad French window and stared out over the barren treelands in the park. A frightened, pathetic droop returned to her lips. It had been there most of the day.

In Sara's boudoir, the doors of which were carefully closed, three persons were in close, even repressed conference. The young mistress of the house sat propped up in a luxurious chaise-loungue, wan but intense. Confronting her were the two men, leaning forward in their chairs. Mr. Carroll held in his hand a number of papers, prominent among them being three or four telegrams. Booth's face was radiant despite the serious matter that occupied his mind. He had reached town early in the morning in response to a telephone message from Carroll announcing the sudden, unannounced appearance of Hetty Castleton at his office, on the previous afternoon. The girl's arrival had been most unexpected. She walked in on Mr. Carroll, accompanied by her maid, who had a distinctly sheepish look in her eyes and seemed eager to explain something but could not find the opportunity.

With some firmness, Miss Castleton had asked Mr. Carroll to explain why the woman had been sent to spy upon her every moment, a demand the worthy lawyer could not well meet for the good and sufficient reason that he wasn't very clear about it himself. Then Hetty broke down and cried, confessing that she was eager to go to Mrs. Wrاندall, at the same time sobbing out something about a symbolic dicky-bird, much to Mr. Carroll's wonder and perplexity.

He sent the maid from the room, and retired with Miss Castleton to the innermost of his private offices, where without much preamble he informed her that he knew everything. Moreover, Mr. Booth was in possession of all the facts and was even then on the point of starting for Europe to see her. Of course, his letter had failed to reach her in time. There was quite a tragic scene in the seclusion of that remote little office, during which Mr. Carroll wiped his eyes and blew his nose more than once, after which he took it upon himself to dispatch a messenger to Sara with the word that he and Miss Castleton would present themselves within half an hour after his note had been delivered.

The meeting between Sara and Hetty was affecting. Almost immediately the former began to show the most singular signs of improvement. She laughed and cried and joyously announced to the protesting nurse that she was feeling quite well again! And, in truth, she got up from the couch on which she reclined and insisted on being dressed for dinner. In another room the amazed nurse was frantically appealing to Mr. Carroll to let her send for the doctor, only to be confounded by his urbane announcement that Mrs. Wrاندall was as "right as a string" and, please God, she wouldn't need the services of doctor or nurse again for years to come. Then he asked the nurse if she had ever heard of a disease called "nostalgia."

She said she had heard of "homesickness."

"Well, that's what ailed Mrs. Wrاندall," he said. "Miss Castleton is the cure."

Booth came the next morning. Even as she lay passive in his arms, Hetty denied him. Her arms were around his neck as she miserably whispered that she could not, would not be his wife, notwithstanding her love for him and his readiness to accept her as she was. She was obstinate, lovingly, tenderly obstinate. He would have despaired but for Sara, to whom he afterwards appealed.

"Wait," was all that Sara had said, but he took heart. He was beginning to look upon her as a sorceress. A week ago he had felt sorry for her; his heart had been touched by her transparent misery. Today he saw her in another light altogether; as the determined, resourceful, calculating woman who, having failed to attain a certain end, was now intensely, keenly interested in the development of another of a totally different nature. He could not feel sorry for her today.

Hetty deliberately had placed herself in their hands, withdrawing from the conference shortly before Vivian's arrival to give herself over to gloomy conjectures as to the future, not only for herself, but for the man she loved and the woman she worshipped with something of the fidelity of a beaten dog.

At a later conference participated in by Sara, Booth and Mr. Carroll, the old lawyer spoke plainly.

"Now are you both willing to give serious consideration to the plan I propose? Take time to think it over. No harm will come to Miss Castleton, I am confident. There will be a nine days' sensation, but, after all, it is the best thing for everybody. You propose living abroad, Booth, so what are the odds if—"

"I can't live abroad unless Hetty reconsiders her decision to not marry me," said the young man dismally. "Gad, Sara, you must convince her that I love her better than—"

"I think she knows all that, Brandon. As I said before, wait! And now, Mr. Carroll, I have this to say to your suggestion: I for one am relentlessly opposed to the plan you advocate. There is no occasion for this matter to go to the public. A trial, you say, would be a mere formality. I am not so sure of that. Why put poor Hetty's head in the lion's mouth at this late stage, after I have protected her so carefully all these months? Why, take the risk? We know she is innocent, isn't it enough that we acquit her in our hearts? No, I cannot consent, and I hold both of you to your promises."

"There is nothing more I can say, my dear Sara," said Carroll, shaking his head gloomily, "except to urge you to think it over very seriously. Remember, it may mean a great deal to her—and to our eager young friend here. Years from now, like a bolt from the sky, the truth may come out in some way. Think of what it would mean then."

Sara regarded him steadily. "There are but four people who know the truth," she said slowly. "It isn't like—" course, you never could be quite easy in your minds. There would always be the feeling of unrest. Am I to be trusted, after all? I have proved myself to be a vindictive schemer. What assurance can you and Hetty have that I will not turn against one or the other of you some time and crush you to satisfy a personal grievance? How do you know, Brandon, that I am not in love with you at this very—"

"Good heavens, Sara!" he cried, again.

"—at this very moment?" she continued. "It would not be so very strange, would it? I am very human. The power to love is not denied me. Oh, I am merely philosophizing. Don't look so serious. We will suppose that I continued along my career as the woman scorned. You have seen how I smart under the lash. Well?"

"But all that is impossible," said Booth, his face clearing. "You're not in love with me, and never can be. That! for your philosophy!"

At the same instant, he became aware of the singular gleam in her eyes; a liquid, oriental glow that seemed to reflect light on her lower lids as she sat there with her face in the shadow. Once or twice before he had been conscious of the mysterious, seductive appeal. He stared back at her, almost defensively, but her gaze did not waver. It was he who first looked away, curiously uncomfortable.

"Still," she said slowly, "I think you would be wise to consider all possible contingencies."

"I'll take chances, Sara," he said, with an odd buoyancy in his voice that, for the life of him, he could not explain, even to himself.

"Even admitting that such should turn out to be the case," said Mr. Carroll judiciously, "I don't believe you'd go so far as to put your loyal friends in jeopardy, Sara. So we will dismiss the thought. Don't forget, however, that you hold them in the hollow of your hand. My original contention was based on the time-honored saying, 'murder will out.' We never can tell what may turn up. The best laid plans of men and mice oft—"

Sara settled back among the cushions with a peremptory wave of her hand. The loose, flowing sleeve fell away, revealing her white, exquisitely modeled arm almost to the shoulder. For some strange, unaccountable reason Booth's eyes fell.

Dinner Stories

Little Willie was very much interested in the moving pictures of "Quo Vadis." He sat with his mother absorbed in the action of the piece till the lions were turned loose in the arena to devour the Christians. Little Willie suddenly broke down and sobbed.

"You're sorry for the poor people who had to die, Willie?" asked his mother.

"Now, boo-hooed Willie, there's one poor old lion there that didn't get a Christian."

A dentist was filling a lady patron's back teeth. When he had finished with the first tooth he handed

"How do what look?" she returned.

"The teeth I just filled."

"Oh, I forgot about the teeth," she exclaimed, reaching for the hand glass.
